The Richmonds Return in Good Shape and Defeat the Stauntons.

LATHROP AND WILLIAMS DO WELL

The New Battery Proves Very Satisfac the Other Games.

Ha, ha, ha! It was "Pop" Tate's resonant and mirth provoking voice that rang out on the dense, heated atmosphere at West-End Park yesterday afternoon and cause the 800 or more cranks who sat within the scope of his voice to laugh with him. Weil might "Pop" laugh yesterday, for West's pets, garbed in beautiful new black suits, wearing across their chests eight large, white letters—"Rich-mond"—had defeated the Bumgardners by

It was a perfect Waterloo for Staunton; in fact, if such a term be admissible in base-ball parlance, they were literally slaughtered. They played good ball, and batted valiantly for the victory, but that they were out-classed was too painfully apparent from start to finish.
THINGS HAVE CHANGED.

'Tis true, they wrested three straights from little Timothy only last week, but then things were not as they now are. We didn't have the team that we have now. We didn't have Lathrop, the mighty twirler, before whose puzzling delivery so many are doomed to find them-selves vanquished. We didn't have Williams, who done the liver-pad and thereby permits "Reddy" Foster to cover third base; and we didn't have the organization of the club that now obtains. There is no question now but what we have strong cub, and if Tim don't treat Staunton to a dose similar to that which was administered to him by them, he deserves nothing better than to be strung up by his thumbs. He need not fear such punishment, bowever, as he has got the peopie who can play ball, and the Bungarders will be done up to the queen's taste. From the very first the black-suited Legislators were in the lead, and this they maintained throughout the game. Kain, the first hitter, was struck with the ball, and under the rules went to first base. McGana followed him, and with a three-base hit brought Kain in, himself following shortly afterwards on Tate's single. Fultz scored one ruh for Staunton in the first. Having been given his base on balls, he worked his way around the bages, seoring on Zeigier's hit. COUPLD OF HOME RUNS.

COUPLD OF HOME RUNS.

Nothing of great interest occurred until in the third inning, when Tate and Lathrop both batted home-runs. The score stood two to two, when Hodge made a single; Morgan followed his example, and Williams was thrown out at first. West hit for a single and brought Morgan in, Hodge having preceded him on Fultz's error. Lathrop then stepped up to the plate, and with a dexterous stroke of the ash sent the sphere over left-field fence. As he came ambling into home, with West trotting along just ahead of him, the crowd fairly went wild. Kain then followed with a base hit, and McGann got to first on an error of Fultz. "Pop" Tate, smiling and looking as handsome as an Adonis in his new funeral garb, then picked up the ash. "Pop" was just eager to hit the ball, and he did it as only he can. It bounded from his bat and floated out on the ambient air. As it dropped over the wrong side of left-field fence, and fielder Fultz, who had been coursing after it with outstretched hands, sat down upon the ground and wept, everybody hollered and everybody who had a hat waved it. Kain, McGann, and Tate came over the rubber closely following one another.

BATTED SEVERS SAVAGELY.

Matters progressed smoothly thereafter until the sixth, when the home boys got wild again. They just batted Severs, who had been substituted for Crinion, out of the box. Hit followed hit in close succession, and run after run was scored, until a grand total of twelve for that one inning had been piled up. The majority of them were made after two men had been retired, and it looked as though the other put out would never be made. The visitors made two runs in the sixth, and Tim's pets did likewise in the seventh. The Bumgardners were goose-egged in Tim's pets did likewise in the seventh. The Bumgardners were goose-egged in the seventh, scored one in the eighth, and drew a blank in the ninth. They managed to present Richmond with a little Easter egg in the eighth, but in the ninth, without any apparent effort on their part, three players were sent over the rubber.

REDDY'S FINE CATCH.

One of the distinctive features of the game was Foster's beautiful catching and quick work. He was covering third base when in the fourth inning Fultz batted a redhot ball directly to him. He couldn't have gotten out of the way of it if he would, and he wouldn't if he could. He clutched it firmly, greatly to the surprise of every one, and before Severs—who was on first and not dreaming that "Reddy" would catch the ball—had started to second, could return to first, he had thrown to Tate, put him out, and thereby made a double play. He was cheered to the echo. After witnessing the ignominious defeat of the Legislators, the Stantonians will be loth to believe their eyes when the ap-pended score is presented to them: RICHMOND.

The Roanokes Captured the Game from Roanoke captured this evening's game from Petersburg by the careless playing of the home boys. Up to the seventh inning the Roanoke boys had only made one single hit off Foreman, and a runner wild pitch by Foreman; McCoy going to third and scoring on Smith out Myers to Honeycutt. Petersburg failed to score in the eighth or ninth inning, while the visitors, in an error by Brodie and singles by Demoss, McCoy, Daniels, and Smith, added two more runs to their score in the eighth inning. CHICAGO, June 25.—Six races, each for a purse of $1,000, were run at Washington Park over a slow track. The judges thought Eclipse, who was entered in the fourth race, to be a ringer, and it was only after a thorough investigation that he was allowed a start. He cut very little figure in the contest, however, being last the entire route. Jockey Irving's work in the saddle was the feature of the day's racing, he landing three of his mounts winners.

residence, No. 608 west Franklin street, Sunday morning at half-past 8 o'clock Mr. Warwick had been in bad health for some time, but his condition was not such as to cause apprehension of immediate danger. He was on the streets as usual Friday, but Saturday evening complained of slight indisposition, and that night he was quite restless. Sunday morning he drove in from his country place, in Chesterfield, where his family had gone for the summer, his purpose being to consult a physician, and while resting at his city residence passed quietly away almost without a moment's warning. The cause

SKETCH OF THE DECEASED. Mr. Warwick was a son of the late Corbin Warwick, Sr., and had virtually spent his entire life in Richmond, where from his boyhood he had been a great favorite. As he grew to manhood he was a central figure in Richmond society, his bright, cheerful disposition and loyal na-ture making for him a host of ardently-attached friends. Some years ago he mar-ried Miss Ida Burroughs, of Albion, N. Y., and she and four children survive

He was a devoted son, a most unselfish and affectionate husband and father, and a true and warm friend. All of his in stincts were high-toned and chivalrous, and he fulfilled to the letter every deand he fulfilled to the letter every dis-mand of duty made upon him as citizen, as business-man, and in the family circle. A few years ago he connected himself with Moore-Memorial church, and in his Chris-tian life, as in all things else, he lived strictly up to his obligations. He scorned all that was not straightforward and scru-pulous correct, and had the courage to do the right as he saw it under all chroumstances.

Mr. Warwick was in his 46th year, and no young man in the community seemed to have a brighter, happier, or more useful career before him. No young man ever passed away here who will be more gen-

DR. MARTIN TAYLOR'S DEATH.

Suddenly Worse-His Career.

Fifth street.

His death was quite sudden, and a great shock to his family and friends. He had been in rather feeble health for some months, and had been confined to some months, and had been conflued to the house about two weeks, but his illness was not of such a character as to cause alarm. Saturday morning, however, there was a decided change for the worse, and he sank rapidly. One of his daughters, Mrs. H. F. Williams, who, with her husband, was spending the summer in Fairfax county, was telegraphed for as soon as the unfavorable change occurred, and they came by the next train, arriving in time to be with more, and after graduation there studied medicine in the Medical College of Vir-ginia. Upon receiving his diploma from the latter institution, he began the practice of dentistry in Richmond, but his health soon falled, and he returned to his country home, where he resumed farming operations. In 1881 he moved back to Richmond and engaged in the feed business, which he conducted successfully up to the time of his death.

Dr. Taylor was intensely Virginian. He was devoted to the State, and felt it was devoted to the State, and feit it an honor to be one of her sons. Though reserved in manner and quiet and unostentatious in his habits, he was unswerving in his devotion to principle. His life was pure and honorable, and he had no toleration for what was not open, horest, and true. He was strong in his friendships and tender, affectionate and generous in the family circle. He was twice married. His first wife was Miss Annie E. Lipscomb, by whom he leaver five children-Miss Belle Taylor, Mrs. R five children-Miss Belle Taylor, Mrs. R.

retteing master, Worshipful Brother Bowditch N. Clapp, an elegant past-master's jewel as a token of the lodge's appreciation of the able and scholarly manner in which he had performed the duties of worshipful master during his term of office. Mr. Clapp was taken wholly by surprise, and feelingly responded to Mr. Mason's remarks, in accepting the jewel. Rev. Dr. Landrum, of No. 10 lodge, by special invitation, made a short address on the life of St. John the Baptist and Worshipful Brothers Ryan, Williams, Cole, Turner, Archer, and Courtney also spoke briefly. The exercises being closed, a fine banquet was served in the Mason's dining-hall, and the evident relish with which the brethren disposed of the with which the brethren disposed of the sant feature of the evening's entertainment. A JOINT CELEBRATION. A JOINT CELEBRATION.

The anniversary was most appropriately celebrated at the Temple last night by a joint meeting of Dove Lodge, No. 51, and St. John's Lodge, No. 38. The officers of Dove Lodge having been duly instaled at the regular meeting earlier in the month, the exercises in that lodge were for the most part merely formal. St. John's Lodge installed its officers as follows: Oscar J. Adams, worshipful master; Charles L. Dowden, senior warden; R. L. Peters, junior warden; W. H. Tatum, treasurer; Junius A. Cosby, secretary; C. H. Cosby, senior deacon; Albert S. Gardner, junior deacon.

Right-Worshipful L. T. Christian per-formed the ceremony of installation with his usual grace and impressiveness. The friends of the retiring worshipful master, W. P. Snider, had prepared for him a surprise in the shape of a magnificent past-master's jewel, which was presented past-master's jewel, which was presented by Past-Master Albert Witte, in an ad-dress of unusual pathos and feeling. After the exercises in the lodge-room the members repaired to the banquet hall, where Caterer Krouse had provided an excellent supper, which was much en-joyed. Owing to the absence of the prom-ised speakers that portion of the original recoverage was comitted.

OTHER OBSERVANCES.

Joppa Lodge, No. 40, and Metropolitan Lodge, No. 11, jointly celebrated the anniversary by a breakfast served at the Temple at $30 o'clock yesterday morning. With the exception of the installation of officers 'exception of the installation of officers' there were no formal exercises. have any of the details been arranged. It is understood that the wedding will occur soon after the November election, and that the couple will go to Europe for an extended trip, returning just in time for Mr. Martin to take his seat in the Senate March 4th next.

It was intimated last winter that Mr. Martin would be married in a few months, but the rumor did not then assume definite shape. Recently, however, the coming event has been quietly talked about among the friends of the Senator-elect and his fiance. The acquaintance between the two date back to 1891. Miss Day was among the first to telegraph congratulations to Mr. Martin upon his nomination for senator, and in recognition of the delicate courtesy a box of handsome roses was expressed to Smithfield.

LOOKING TO THE MEETING OF SOUTH-ERN RAILWAY STOCKHOLDERS Newport News as a Great Cotton-Shipping Port-Significant Facts Worthy to Be Considered.

A WORD TO THE WISE

NEWPORT NEWS, June 25 .- The people of Newport News are naturally looking forward with a vast deal of interest to the meeting in July of the stockholders of the Southern Rallway Company (old Danville system). By that time the road will have been turned over practically to the new organization, and it is expected that its plans will be definitely known. The impression grows that the road is many signs that point to the correctness of the impression. There is every reason why it shoul! come here, and no reas-It is a recognized fact that having this great port was a most important factor in enabling the Drexel, Morgan & Co. people to carry out so successfully the scheme of rorganization of the Chesa-peake and Ohio, It is also recognized that Newport News would prove the same at-have entirely different territory, and it seems a logical deduction that the Southern will make this point one of the great, if not the greatest cotton-shipping port of the South. The Chesapeake and Ohio already supports one splendid line of transatlantic steamships, and there is no question that the Southern railway could support another. The latter would not have to build to Newport News, but could got here direct from Richmond over the Chesapeake and Ohio tracks.
